Our Strategy

We develop the community by implementing educational and healthcare related projects. These projects are an answer to direct needs within the community. When our beneficiaries have access to quality education and healthcare we aim to give them access to the economy through production or employment.

Our strategy is best visualised by our cycle which exists of four elements, being develop, produce, reinvest and trade. Our initial involvement in each project area is purely focused on the development of this particular community.

Our Approach

Emperialistic SA Foundation recognises that the typical approaches of government and NGOs compartmentalise problems and deliver programmes which tend to address single issues in a non-operative and unsustainable manner. In response we developed an approach which addresses the challenges faced by communities in a holistic and comprehensive manner by adopting an integrated approach to community development. Emperialistic SA Foundation's purpose is to utilise this methodology to deliver a strength of community cohesion to communities and to aid there development

The model identifies the systemic challenges in society and communities, attaches value to intrinsic community assets and indigenous knowledge, and explores and maps opportunities to overcome fragmentation of policy, systems and service delivery through the supported mobilisation of local capacity. Based on this understanding, Emperialistic SA Foundation works collaboratively with multiple stakeholders to identify key projects that would have the highest impact in 'the system' to effect sustainable social change.

The advisory is put in place as an accountability tool for the board. Education & Child Development

Low levels of literacy and education in general can impede the economic development of a country in the current rapidly changing technology-driven world.

Sport & Youth Development

To combat issues such as HIV/AIDS, fatherlessness, drug abuse, lack of education, and poverty, sports focuses on whole life coaching.
